THE END.

Panel/Comic Book Dialogue

A blob like figure is doing laundry and another sock goes missing. Not just any sock this time but their favorite sock! This time they decide they've had enough and go to check the dryer. When approached with the dryer, it appears that it has become some sort of portal. The blob decides to crawl through and see what this could be.

They are now in a different dimension which appears to be a natural environment. A pathway is shown and the blob begins to follow it. Down the grass path, through the trees, and up the mountain. After reaching the top of the mountain, the blob is in awe. The surrounding trees and bushes are filled with their missing socks. The blob begins gathering as much of the missing pairs as possible but then a voice is heard demanding an explanation of the blobs appearance. The blob is confused and turns around to see a dark cloaked figure. The cloak drops and its the blobs favourite sock that just went missing. The sock begins to yell and wants to put up a fight but forgets how small he is as the blob just picks him up and carries him back home.

The blob goes back through the path making it back home though the dryer portal and unplugs it as they are back.
